

WORKPLACE TALK PROGRAMME

Our AIM

Our Preventive Drug Education (PDE) programmes are targeted at youths and are generally school-based in nature. Although young people may be aware of the dangers of drugs, they often lack the maturity and insight to resist peer pressure and the temptations of drugs. Hence, besides youths, we also engage working adults, parents and care-givers as they have great influence in the lives of young people.

What is it ABOUT?

A Workplace Talk is usually between 30-45 minutes presented by an experienced Narcotics Officer from the Central Narcotics Bureau. With more than 10 years' experience in fighting the drug menace, our officers are passionate of their mission and are keen to share with working adults, parents and care-givers the dire consequences of drug offences.

The talks, injected with visually impactful slides, are customised in terms of the target audience to better relate the anti-drug messages to them. The talks can be conducted in a smaller group setting that allows our officers to better engage the audience at a more intimate level to facilitate more in-depth exchanges.

Right @ Your Workplaces

It would be great if your workplaces offer a conducive environment preferably with adequate AV equipment to facilitate our talks.

What else is there?

PDE VIDEOS

Organisations may also request for our PDE videos to be screened to complement our talks. The documentaries include re-enactments of real-life accounts of ex-abusers as well as interviews with medical professionals to clarify misperception and myths, explain physical and psychological detrimental effects, social aspects, legal and penal consequences of drug abuse.

EXHIBITION

As an option to follow up to the talks, an exhibition is an effective way for audience to internalise the anti-drug message. The exhibition comprises mock drug exhibits with explanatory texts on the types, effects and penalties of drugs.
